

LCNUK Safeguarding and Wellbeing Policy

Introduction

Lung Cancer Nursing UK (LCNUK) is a membership charitable organisation for lung cancer nurse specialists (LCNS) working throughout the UK. We provide support, education, and guidance for lung cancer nurse specialists in caring for patients with lung cancer and or mesothelioma.

We do not directly work with members of the public or provide services to patients. Neither do we directly work or provide services to adults or children who have care or support needs. However, LCNUK is a trusted, professional organisation and we recognise that we have a duty of care to those we support and those with whom we work. Whether those working with the charity our volunteers (i.e. trustees or committee members), delegates (i.e. at events or our Annual Conference), or contractors who help us to deliver our charitable activities (i.e. our operations team at Red Hot Irons, medical writers etc). As such we are committed to creating an environment which promotes effective safeguarding and wellbeing.

This document sets out our policy and expectations on wellbeing and safeguarding, clarifies our responsibilities to protect and promote the wellbeing of all those who work with LCNUK and those we represent. This policy should be read in conjunction with the LCNUK Code of Conduct, Conflicts of Interest, and Equality and Diversity policies.

Scope of Policy

The policy applies across the whole organisation including trustees, committee members, staff, contractors, and volunteers, and applies to all activities, including committee meetings, Annual Conference and other events, clinical guidance, producing publications, policy, and resources, administration, governance, and communications and in the recruitment of trustees, committee members and volunteers. The policy aims to protect all trustees, committee members, volunteers, contractors, and those attending our events from harm, prioritising their mental and physical wellbeing.

We value all those that contribute to the organisation, and we take seriously our commitment to look after their mental and physical wellbeing. Safeguarding and wellbeing are a fundamental and core part of who we are and what LCUNK stands for.

Whilst we do not work directly with vulnerable adults or children, we may nevertheless come across issues of concern during our activities with people we work with or represent. Any individual may identify or be concerned about the wellbeing or safety of a colleague, volunteer, or fellow delegate, for example, because of physical or mental abuse, overwork, stress, bullying, discrimination, illness, addiction, or anxiety etc.

It should be noted that LCUNK does not provide medical advice to members of the public, or to patients directly. Where individuals (whether members of the public or members of LCNUK) approach LCNUK for medical advice for their own purposes, they should be encouraged to seek help from their own GP.

Policy Principles

The guidance is based upon the six principles of safeguarding (as set out in the Care Act):

1. Empowerment
2. Prevention
3. Proportionality
4. Protection
5. Partnership
6. Accountability

It is recognised that every individual thrives best in a supportive, safe, understanding, and caring environment and everyone is potentially vulnerable to harm whether because of abuse, neglect, overwork, or stress. As such we are committed to supporting and encouraging a safe working environment, in which all can express their views and opinions without fear of harm, judgement, bullying or abuse and will act where we feel support or intervention is appropriate, reasonable, and proportionate. Where we can help, and where it is appropriate and/or incumbent on LCNUK to do so, we will provide support, assistance, and guidance to those whose wellbeing or health is at risk.

Actions

We will take the following actions to help ensure the safeguarding and wellbeing of those that work for or with LCNUK.

- We will foster a supportive and compassionate environment in which views and opinions can be expressed free from abuse, discrimination, judgement, or harm.
- We will take a genuine interest in our colleagues' welfare and wellbeing and provide opportunities in which individuals can raise concerns.
- We will encourage individuals to report any issues of concern so that appropriate action can be taken.
- We will record all relevant incidents and regularly review to ensure we identify any trends or patterns of concern.
- We will respond promptly and proportionately where issues are raised, offering support, guidance, and solutions, where it is possible and appropriate to do so. By way of example, interventions may include discussions with those involved, measures to address problems such as modifications or adaptations to behaviour, support to reduce workload, responsibilities or working hours, training to promote education, understanding and awareness, or signposting to appropriate agencies for help.
- We will build an environment of trust and confidence.
- We will respect the privacy, feelings, and individual circumstances of others.
- We will ensure that all those in the organisation are aware of their responsibilities under this policy and understand what to do if they have concerns, either in relation to themselves or others.

Process

Any concerns regarding safeguarding or wellbeing of staff, volunteers, committee members, delegates or trustees should be reported in confidence to the Chair of Trustees. Alternatively, if on site, at a conference or learning event for example, the reporting should be to the lead person at the event who will in turn report the concern to the Chair of Trustees.

In most circumstances the Chair of Trustees will decide on appropriate and proportionate intervention if it is felt necessary and helpful to do so (being mindful of individual circumstances and the privacy of individuals).

Where the concern relates to the Chair of Trustees, the concern should be reported to the Vice Chair of Trustees and the decision on possible action will rest with the Vice Chair of Trustees.

Where the concern relates to any member of the Operational Team at Red Hot Irons, the Chair of Trustees will report to Tricia Bryant as Director of Red Hot Irons.

All incidents or issues of concern will be recorded by the Chair of Trustees in a confidential file. The file will contain an overview of the safeguarding or wellbeing concern, who raised the concern, the date (and where appropriate the location/event) the concern was raised and the date (if relevant on which the incident took place), what action was taken, and any outcomes. The file will remain confidential and accessible only by the Chair of Trustees. Where the incident relates to the Chair of Trustees, the report shall be made by the Vice Chair of Trustees.

LCNUK will, where required by law, report any safeguarding issues to the relevant authorities. It is impossible to map out the action required for every scenario, as each step taken should be informed by the six principles of safeguarding and be informed by discussions with those concerned. However, the table below outlines potential safeguarding and wellbeing areas of concerns, signs, and indicators to look out for, and the action that might be taken once the concern has been identified.

Type of concern	Signs/Indicators	Action
Physical Illness	Regular or unexplained absence from meetings Physical signs of illness, weight loss, tiredness, bruising, persistent cough, breathlessness. Roles and Responsibilities

The Board of Trustees is ultimately responsible for safeguarding and wellbeing within LCNUK and will be responsible for approving and scrutinising policies on a regular basis. However, all members of the organisation are encouraged to maintain contact, enquire after each other’s health, and look out for signs that might cause concern and/or require intervention.

It is the responsibility of the Chair of Trustees to ensure that trustees, volunteers, and contractors are aware of their responsibilities under this policy. This policy will be reviewed annually by the Board of Trustees.

The Board of Trustees will ensure that the principles of the policy are also enshrined and delivered through the policies, processes, practices, ethos, and activities of the organisation.

Where LCNUK works closely with a service provider (e.g. Red-Hot Irons) the Board of Trustees is responsible for ensuring they are aware of their responsibilities under this policy and expect similar values to be present within any service provider with whom we have a very close working relationship.
